Greenopolis Foundation Implements New Micro-grant Program

About the Foundation

The Greenopolis Foundation, in partnership with the Environmental Media Association, was formed to provide grants to students, educators and community groups to use for projects that promote environmental and social sustainability. The Foundation seeks to capture and share the learnings from these projects with the larger Greenopolis community.

The Greenopolis Foundation supports all sustainability areas and is interested in funding projects that focus on any of the following:

- Green Energy and Conservation
- Green Community and Education
- Clean Water and Air
- Reuse & Recycling
- Waste Reduction and Elimination
- Healthy Soils and Forests
- Wildlife and Habitat Conservation / Protection
- Climate Change and Carbon Footprint
- Healthy Sustainable Food and Agriculture
- Environmental Health

Grants

Greenopolis Foundation grants are available to students, educators and community groups to use toward projects that promote environmental and social sustainability. These grants are available in various amounts ranging from $100-1,000, and are primarily funded by Greenopolis partner organizations. There is no limit on the number of grants awarded each year; Greenopolis and its partners will award as many grants as funds allow.
