

Dave Karlsgodt is a director in Brailsford & Dunlavey's Management Advisory Services practice group, spearheading the development of interactive tool sets and management of data that provide clients the basis for successful outcomes. Dave is also adept at explaining complex topics at a high level for non-technical client employees and other stakeholders. He previously served as a president of his own software development and consulting firm and has worked in a variety of technical roles solving clients' diverse problems with a combination of creativity and business acumen. He is the creator and host of a podcast called the "Campus Energy and Sustainability Podcast." Dave holds a BA from the University of North Texas and attended the Executive Education for Sustainability Leadership Program at the Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health.